Driving Decisions with Data

A Seminar for Clinical Managers

HCA EDUCATION AND RESEARCH

June 6, 2018

Albany Marriott
189 Wolf Road, Albany, NY 12205

Registration & Continental Breakfast: 8:30AM
Program: 9 – 4:30PM

Home health care agencies will survive and thrive in the new value based health care world if their clinical managers use data to improve population health outcomes, lower costs, reduce waste in work and improve the patient and clinician experience. The new Medicare Conditions of Participation for home health care also require agencies to adopt a data driven approach to Quality Assurance/Quality Improvement (QAPI).

This practical and interactive seminar will help managers understand their role in using data to drive decisions for both the agency QAPI process and in daily clinical work. Managers will leave with essential tools and techniques for obtaining data, step by step data analysis methods and practical methods for achieving target goals. Participants will have an opportunity to analyze clinical and business data, to develop action plans and to apply data-driven decisions to real operational work problems.

By the end of this program, participants will be able to:

- Explain why data-driven decisions are vital in the new world of health care
- Describe the role of data in meeting the Medicare Conditions of Participation for QAPI
- List key home health care measures
- Describe four key steps to making data-driven management decisions
- Utilize basic data analysis techniques to turn data into actionable information
- Use data to solve operational problems and to achieve agency QAPI goals
