Background

Home and community-based services are a core component of New York State's health care system. These services are also subject to their own unique challenges, needs and opportunities. Over 500,000 New York patients and their families are reached by these services, including constituents in your district, who are able to age-in-place and avoid unnecessary institutionalized care.

This January 8 Forum will provide lawmakers and staff with the information they need to understand the key issues related to home care, hospice, and managed long term care services available in communities across the State, including:

- assistance available to constituents seeking access to care at home;
- availability of programs throughout districts across the state that provide these services;
- challenges faced by constituents and the agencies that support them; and
- the state association experts who can support lawmakers and staff with technical assistance, analysis, legislative proposals and more throughout the year.
